Adventure Etiquette

This is a group adventure, made up of many personalities, which makes for lots of fun. We encourage you to come along with an open mind for an awesome adventure. Remember we can't control the weather, delays, unforeseen changes to the itinerary BUT we can control our response. In joining this adventure you agree to:

- Be kind and courteous – to each other, to airline and, hospitality, our partner hiking guides, strangers and to yourself
- Please bring your own First Aid kit for your personal needs.
- If, whilst on the adventure, you have any concerns about the adventure in general, our partner hiking guide/s where applicable, other members on the adventure or something else please raise it with your C.R.E.W leader.
- Sharing pictures and images of your adventure is fantastic and we encourage you to share away on your social media channels. Remember to hashtag Women's Fitness Adventures. Please respect other members of the adventure and we ask that you only post pictures of others that are positive and respectful (ask yourself, if this was me, would I like it posted)
- Your Private The Mighty Murray River Fitness Adventure Facebook Group is for the sharing of photos of your adventure with other members on the adventure. We encourage you to add your pictures in here so that they can be shared with everyone.
- Please follow our golden rule - The Women's Fitness Adventures "No Sorry" rule. "The majority of the time the word "sorry" is a habit. Let's aim to avoid saying it.
- For the adventure to run smoothly, we have our "On time" but not early rule. For example if the departure time for the hike is 7.30, we need to ensure we are ready to hike out (or get on the bus) at 7.30. Not 5 minutes later or 30 minutes early. Simply ON TIME.
- There is no place at a place setting for your phone. The dinner table is an important social ritual that we engage in with our fellow members. To stay present and to avoid unintentional rudeness phones should stay off the meal table.
- On our adventures, we work as a team to support, encourage and celebrate each other. This means that we pitch in to help where needed, assist others if directed, carry our own luggage and generally look out for the entire team.

I agree to the Adventure Etiquette for this adventure
